

SEN. BORAH ATTACKS JUDICIARY RECALL

SENATOR FROM IDAHO MADE VIGOROUS SPEECH TODAY AGAINST RECALL OF JUDGES.

PRINCIPLE DESTROYS

Idea Entirely Against Republican Form of Government, Said Senator, and Law-makers Should Heed Instructions of the People.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Asserting the principle to be utterly destructive of a republican form of government, Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, today opposed the recall of the judiciary in a vigorous speech to the senate.

Follow Instructions. "I maintain that in writing a law," he said, "we ought to listen closely to the instructions of a well founded and well sustained public opinion."

Its Construction. "But after the law is written, the judge who constrains it and by its terms measures out to each citizen his duty or his obligations should consider nothing but the terms as written."

Simply Obey. "He has nothing to do with its leniency or its harshness, its wisdom or unwisdom."

Makes Assertion. Borah made the startling declaration that there had arisen in the past few years a quiet and subtle way of getting rid of federal judges when their opinions did not suit the department heads.

Consider States. The senate considered today the resolutions admitting Arizona and New Mexico to statehood. With many senators, however, anxious to discuss the recall of the judiciary, it was probable the legislative day of August 7 would have to be carried over until tomorrow.

Adjourn Soon. Leaders in both houses of congress today figured that adjournment of congress would take place between Aug. 15 and 18.

BECKEMEYER ADMITS TELLING FALSEHOOD IN LORIMER PROBE

Witness in Senatorial Investigation Says Today He Told Lie to Charles White and Detective.

Washington, Aug. 7.—In the Lorimer hearing today Attorney Hiney elicited from former State Representative Beckemeyer a confession of falsehood.

"When Charles White and Detective Turner came to you to verify the story the Chicago Tribune was going to print, you told them you had not received any money from Leo O'Neill Browne or Robert E. Wilson, didn't you?" asked Hiney.

"Yes sir," replied Beckemeyer.

"In doing so you lied?"

"Yes," Beckemeyer said it was true he voted for Lorimer of his own free will and accord.

He decided that way a few minutes before he voted, after the talk with Representative Alschuler, who shouted, "For anybody who could beat Hopkins."

STATE RATES UNDER COMPENSATION LAW

Manual of Rates According to New Law Are Being Published—Will Be Distributed Aug. 20.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 7.—The manual of rates for Wisconsin under the new employers' liability and workmen's compensation law is now in the hands of the printers in New York, and may be expected to appear by Aug. 20. The work is in charge of Walter G. Cowles, secretary of the liability department of the Travelers' Insurance company, who is chairman of the standing manual committee.

The rate book will differ from the New Jersey book in that there will be one additional rate column. The New Jersey manual contains a combination rate and a public liability rate. The Wisconsin manual will have one additional rate for employers' liability. It will have one rate for compensation, which will include employers' liability, with a fixed amount for employers' liability alone. The New Jersey law differs considerably from the Wisconsin law. In New Jersey everyone is presumed to have accepted the law; in Wisconsin the employer must accept it to receive its benefits.

The manual committee has not started work on the Illinois manual. The Illinois law goes into effect on May 1, 1912.

MUCH PLEASED WITH APPOINTMENT MADE OF NEW GOVERNOR

Egypt Satisfied With the Naming of Kitchener As Regent of That Country.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Aug. 7.—Except among the Egyptian Nationalists, who, however, have been very quiet of late, the appointment of Lord Kitchener as British Agent in Egypt and the Sudan, has been received with the greatest enthusiasm. Here in England satisfaction is expressed in the fact that the Government has at last found something for the greatest of British generals to do, something that is considered worthy of his talents, while the British residents in Egypt have received the news with the greatest delight.

Although Sir Edward Grey has announced in the House of Commons that the appointment of Lord Kitchener does not foreclose any change in the Government's policy, there is a feeling, both here and in Egypt, that there is no change, there will at last be a different way of carrying out that policy. Kitchener's reputation gives the imperialist hope that he will deal a little more drastically with those Nationalists, who at the commencement of the late Sir Eldon Gorst's administration, attempted and to some extent succeeded in stirring up trouble.

While the Nationalists are quiet and their leaders disassociate themselves from all talk of violence, there is known to be a great deal of smoldering discontent, encouraged by the Socialist members of parliament. A strong man it was felt, was needed to keep this under, and in Kitchener the people believe they have the man.

His long experience in Egypt and the Sudan further fits him for the place and his appointment was doubtless made with the almost perfect certainty that British prestige would benefit from his administration. There are some optimists who believe that his policy will spread throughout the Near East and that with Kitchener and a strong army in Egypt, Britain will be able to formulate and carry out any plans she may have in Turkey and Persia or frustrate any schemes of other powers that might interfere with England's policy.

Lord Kitchener's full title is Minister Plenipotentiary and Consul-General and his salary is $25,000 a year. In theory he simply acts as the authorized exponent of the views and wishes of his Government to the Government of Egypt. In reality, however, he is arbiter of Egyptian policy, and will be responsible, under the British Government, for the administration of Egypt and the Sudan and the Khedive, the theoretical ruler, is bound to accept his advice. The Khedive is said to have advised the appointment of Kitchener, for with a strong man at Cairo, the Sultan's responsibilities will have very little to say. Trade Unionists are looking forward with interest to a fight over the question of the organization of a citizen army to be raised at their annual congress in September. The subject is to be brought forward by the London Glass Blowers Society in the form of the following resolution:

"This congress realizing that militarism and the existence of a regular standing army constitute a menace to popular liberty, is of the opinion that the time has arrived for the institution of a real citizen army, free entirely from military law during times of peace, officered entirely by the selection of the rank and file. Such citizen army to be used for defensive purposes only."

The members of the congress are not by any means agreed on this subject. At previous congresses similar resolutions have been defeated, the members declaring themselves opposed to all forms of militarism. If the proposer of the resolution is to be credited however, Trade Unionists are coming around to the view repeatedly urged by Will Thorne, M. P., the labor member, that every man should be compulsorily trained to bear arms, and that they should be organized into a citizen army to take the place of the standing army. A variety of opinions have been given by labor leaders and social reformers on the resolution. It is rather interesting to hear H. W. Lee, the secretary of the Social Democratic Federation, declaring that "military training in some form or other is bound to be introduced into this country here long, and we prefer to see it universal and in as democratic a form as possible, without the application of military law in time of peace."

Information Is Received At Indianapolis Recruiting Station That Bohemian Count Is Spying In Army.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The war department has been advised by Captain Watson, recruiting officer at Indianapolis, that he holds a valuable clue to the identity of a private who is alleged to be an Austrian spy. The man's name is said to be Count Windel-Graetz, and his home Prague, Bohemia, with being an Austrian secret service agent. TROUBLES IN CHINA ARE NOT CAUSE FOR SERIOUS UPRISING

Foreign Legations Have Expressed No Fears So Far As Demonstrations in Celestial Kingdom.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Peking, Aug. 7.—There is little or no fear among the legations at Peking or even on the part of the Chinese government that any of the movements that would seem to be of a revolutionary character will culminate in a serious uprising.

The reasons for this optimism are several. The temperance of the Chinese is still contrary to argument by force only an infinitesimal number of foreign educated students being present against the peaceful doctrine of Confucius. The modern troops of the central government are sufficient to cope with any rising at present within the bounds of possibility. There is apparently no revolutionary organization of a sufficiently serious character to threaten the overthrow of the dynasty, though there is much discussion by hot-headed students who often send memorials to Peking written in their own blood.

But the foregoing are only the minor reasons for confidence. The chief reason is the fact that the serious men who are disabused with the present state of affairs fear that a revolution would give a pretext of two or more foreign nations to invade and annex provinces like Mongolia, Manchuria, Yunnan and Tibet has been discussed seriously for many months in the newspapers and among the half informed students throughout the country. The partition of China, a theme which excited the western world several years ago, has only now struck and alarmed the mass of the Chinese.

The dread of foreign invasions is inspiring patriotism and is causing many memorials to be sent to the throne, pointing out the dangers of the alleged situation and beseeching the Prince Regent to institute rapid reforms including the development of the army and navy. But the Manchian dynasty is not likely to increase the army lest, after becoming capable of defending the state, it might turn upon the alien dynasty, of which there is much jealousy. At present the Manchian control not only the government, but the army.

LIFE INSURANCE OF STATE TO BE SMALL

Insurance Commissioner Ekern Declares Little Business Will Be Done Under New Law.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 7.—The state of Wisconsin is not expecting to do a great volume of business in its new life insurance department, according to Insurance Commissioner Ekern. Mr. Ekern takes the history of the Equitable of London as reasonable ground for believing that the progress of any company or fund which does not employ agents will not be very marked. Mr. Ekern says, however, that he believes the department will do some business with foreigners from southeastern Europe, who are accustomed to have insurance, banking and the like conducted by the state and appear to be distrustful of private corporations engaged in these lines. He also looks for a good annuity business in the course of time.

Mr. Ekern says that the fraternal people seem to be much more interested in the new department than are the old line companies. Whether they feel that the part of their membership which does not place a high value on the social features of the orders will go to the state for insurance is not known, but they appear much interested.

REASONS GIVEN FOR JAPAN'S HESITANCY IN TREATY MATTER

Hesitation On Part of Japanese Not Due To Any Objections To Arbitration or Signing of Proposed Treaty.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokyo, Aug. 7.—Hesitation on the part of Japan to enter into negotiations with the United States looking to the conclusion of an arbitration treaty on lines similar to projected between Great Britain and the United States is not born of objection to arbitration, but arises from a desire to know more of what may be proposed before committing herself. It is pointed out that there are certain things which Japan cannot and will not arbitrate any more than it would be reasonable to expect the United States to arbitrate the application of the Monroe Doctrine. Undoubtedly Manchuria is a factor. So much has been said and is being said about the hand of the whole world being against Japan's expansion policies that it has come to be the popular belief in Japan that every effort will be made to prevent her making any more out of her present position in Manchuria than the life of the leaves permits.

It is a fact, undoubtedly, that Japan's plans for the future, so far as Manchuria is concerned, are nebulous. She has developed the port of Dairen along the lines of the program laid down by Russia before the war, and Dairen is becoming a magnificent Pacific port. There is no intention of making Port Arthur a naval base, but it too will be developed along commercial lines. Four hundred miles of the South Manchuria Railway, together with the lease of the peninsula, have involved vast expenditures. These may be reimbursed by China and the leases terminated, but there is another interest, namely, the Antung-Manchurian Railway, which in another year will be the continuation of the Korean Railway and the last link in the line between Pusan at the southern end of peninsula of Korea and Berlin.

By the time the leases have terminated, the capital account will be very large, and it is doubtful if China will be able to purchase. Meanwhile the development of Manchuria goes on almost entirely because of the activities of Japan, and the Chinaman resident benefits in so far as he is able to market his produce, while at the same time, the money in circulation increases and he is more prosperous. The Japanese do not care to go to Manchuria. The climate does not suit them, and they must come in competition as laborers and as merchants with the Chinaman, who is a cheaper laborer and equally as astute a merchant. Nevertheless there can be no doubt that Japan intends to maintain her sphere of influence up to the last. There has been so much hickering over certain interests in Manchuria, and so much of discrimination against others and intrigue to their own behalf has been laid to the door of Japan that she always looks for some move that will follow the same lines. Arbitration has not a pleasant sound to the Japanese officials. They have been disappointed by arbitration before. Nevertheless if the terms of the Anglo-American treaty are found to be practical there is every likelihood that Japan will not be unwilling to join but she will always ask to be allowed to apply the "Monroe Doctrine to Asia."

GOSPEL MEETINGS ARE WELL ATTENDED

Revival Gatherings Held by Evangelist Simpson Are Attracting Good Sized Crowds.
The gospel tent at Riverview park is proving a real attraction and we believe resulting in much good.
Last evening the tent was crowded to its utmost seating capacity and the large attractive crowd listened raptly to the Evangelist's stirring and heart-searching address on the subject of "Healing" based on Isaiah 53:3 "Heal and Your Soul Shall Live."
Mr. Simpson, in his usual field and happy way, set forth, first, the incommunicable value of the soul; second, its redemption because of sin; third, the paramount importance of hearing the voice of God. He set forth the reason why so many hearing the message for years are not profited thereby. The preacher declared the only safe saving method of hearing the message, that is, third, attentively; second, affectionately; first, with application, and fourth, with compliance.
"The service was of a high order and profitable. Tonight at 8 o'clock. Come."

WILL BEGIN ACTUAL CONSTRUCTION WORK

Operations On Chicago and Wisconsin Valley Electric Line Will Be Started At Madison, Aug. 20, and Janesville Within A Year.

According to John Wilmer, representative of the Chicago and Wisconsin Valley railroad, with headquarters at Madison, actual construction work on the road will be started at Madison on August 20. This is the electric line which is to be constructed and operated between Janesville and Merrill by the way of Madison, Portage Stevens Point and Wausau.

According to the plans of the company as announced by Mr. Wilmer, construction work will be divided in the section of the line between Madison and Stevens Point first. Much of the work has already been completed at Portage and vicinity and construction at the Madison end is included in the work of the company this month.
Mr. Wilmer was confident that operations would be started at Janesville within a year. In the meantime, he will visit the city again within a short time to arrange matters for the company regarding right of way and financing the enterprise.
It is later planned to extend the line to Elgin and Chicago with other branch lines throughout the northern part of the state. It is planned to start work on the branch from Prairie du Sac City to Middleton shortly.

Mr. Wilmer left this evening for New York City on business matters connected with the railroad.

MANY EXTRA TRAINS
THROUGH LOCAL YARDS

That the movement of crops has already begun, is shown by the increasing number of extra freight trains that are now being hauled in this section of the state. Likewise the shipments of stock are beginning from the local districts and in the near future it is expected that the number of extras will be much more than at present.

During the past few days several extra freight trains have passed through this city and today there were two or three on the two roads. This increase in the shipping business brings with it the prospects for more work for the local transportation, men as well as increased work in the shops. In spite of the fact that the farmers fear that their crops will be short in the next part of the season, they believe that on an average through out the country and the state the crop of shipments will compare favorably with that of other years. These prospects point to the usual increase in the transportation business during the coming fall.

RELIABLE DRUGGISTS.

Remember that time honored drug store story? A woman had a prescription filled and it came to 60c. The new clerk collected for it and later went to the boss and said: "Boss, that lady passed a lead half dollar on us."

"Never mind," replied the boss. "We still make a nickel on the deal."

Lot of folks have an idea that the prescription business means wealth. It was good once upon a time. Now it must be kept up to a notch that the druggist of 15 yrs. ago never even dreamed of. We tell you that it requires thousands of items to supply our prescription department. There are drugs that cost many dollars for a single ounce. There are drugs that are so precious that they are purchased almost in atoms, drugs so powerful that the finest instruments are required to weigh the atoms that go into prescriptions.

There are more coal tar products alone than there were drugs in entirety kept 25 years ago.

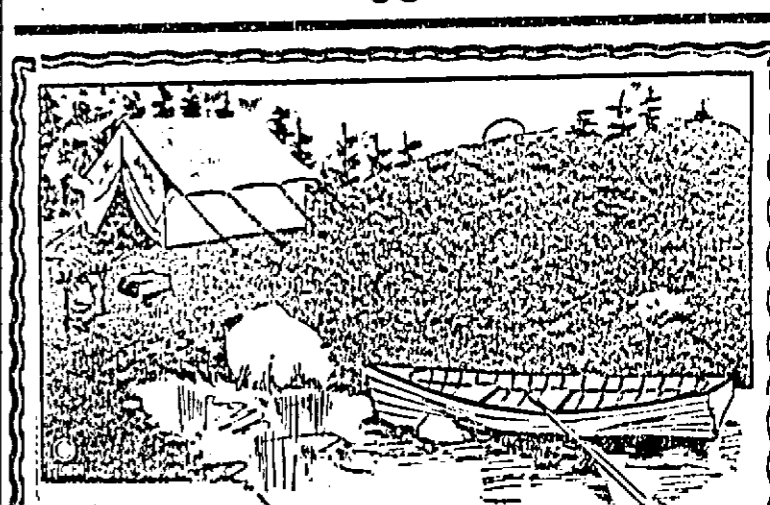

So many of them are rare and costly that they can be found only in the complete and modern drug stores, like the Reliable.

And yet Reliable prescription prices are always reasonable. They represent the cost of the ingredients with a fair profit for time and material. Beyond that we never go. We have not nor will ever sacrifice quality.

This victory for the Hansons took them out of the last place in the league, tying them with the Plumbers and pushing the Printers back to the cellar championship of the league. STATE GOLF TITLE TO MILWAUKEE MAN

Edward P. Allen Takes State Honors in Close Fight With Kenosha Man—Janesville Men Lose.

Kenosha, August 7.—State golf championship tournament won by Edward P. Allen, of Milwaukee, when he defeated Chester C. Allen of Kenosha 3 up and 2 to play, on the links of the Kenosha golf club, Saturday afternoon.

Allen played golf which would have won the state championship under almost any ordinary circumstances. It was impossible for him, however, to stand up before the terrific drives and marvelous puts of the Milwaukee youngster.

Allen's victory is especially noteworthy after his confessed "blow up" in the morning eighteen. After getting 3 up on his opponent in the morning, he finished 2 down under bogey.

E. P. Moten of Milwaukee won the consolation championship over Al Schaller of Janesville. And in the lights for the directors' cup consolation, H. N. Hosok of Janesville was defeated one up by E. H. Tower Jr. of Milwaukee.

GOOD FOR COOPER.

Congressman Cooper's attitude on the attempt to rush through this special session of congress sundry tariff measures is deserving of considerable credit. As the Gazette in the past has been in the habit of Mr. Cooper's attitude on questions of legislation it is in the position of the Milwaukee Sentinel, which has likewise frequently disagreed with the congressman from the First, and both can now honestly commend Mr. Cooper and his attitude in congress.

Mr. Cooper will represent a new constituency in the coming session of congress, having lost two of his counties, Green and La Fayette, and having had added, Waukesha county. He will, however, have to offer no excuses for his present stand, either to his old or new friends. The Milwaukee Sentinel, in commenting upon the situation, says the following:

"The Sentinel has had frequent occasion to disagree sharply with Congressman Cooper of Wisconsin. It therefore takes the more pleasure in commending, heartily the position taken last Thursday by the insurgent representative from the First district on the cotton duties bill.

"Mr. Cooper believes in a tariff commission. Mr. Cooper also believes in the binding force of a party platform.

"The Wisconsin republican platform of 1910 declared in favor of a tariff commission to investigate the home and foreign production cost differentials as the only scientific way to determine what the republican national platform fixed as approximately the right measure of a legitimately protective schedule.

"The state platform concluded: 'Upon the information so obtained congress should proceed to revise the different schedules independently of each other according to protective principles.'

"The new tariff board or commission has been obtaining such information through investigations at home and abroad which have cost much time, labor and money. The information is nearly ready for the use of congress. It will be ready at the next regular session.

"Nevertheless the democrats are hurrying through sundry political tariff bills at this session, thereby repudiating the tariff commission, flouting its work, and ignoring the information it was created to collect.

"So it is very plain that the republican members from Wisconsin who join hands with the democratic opposition in passing these bills intended primarily to embarrass the administration are guilty of a double inconsistency.

"They are reculant to their personal declarations in favor of the tariff commission plan, and they are false to the state platform which declared that these very schedules should be revised in the light of information obtained by a tariff commission.

"To this pitiful insurgent departure of the La Follette hockeys in the house from principle and platform, Mr. Cooper formed an honorable exception. His idea seems to be that the republican state platform meant something, and that the rush to get in these political revision bills a little ahead of the tariff commission information is a mighty illogical, not to say suspicious, procedure.

"Is congress to concede a tariff commission to public demand, and to proceed to nullify it in practice?

"Mr. Cooper's display of individual brains and conscience may not be altogether palatable to the boss, who is given to regarding and regarding such symptoms of independence as acts of insubordination. But Mr. Cooper's position was so clearly right and consistent and in keeping with the platform that he need have no apologies or excuses to make to his constituents."

CITY STREETS.

That something should be done for the betterment of the streets of the city is apparent to all. Last year there were many blocks of asphalt macadam laid in the Third ward, part of which is a most excellent street, and part, evidently due to the material used, is not up to the standard. The question of oiling the macadam where it is now laid, has been discussed and in the Third ward five and a half blocks have been thus treated, by private individuals, with success. It is not a theory, this oiling the streets, but a genuine good service. It is worth looking into as to cost and final results, and if as successful on the whole as it has been on the streets tried thus far, it should be adopted the city over. The council should be awake to the responsibility that rests with them and see to it that Janesville has the best streets possible to have, throughout the entire city. The condition of Center avenue is a disgrace and there are many other localities where improvements could be made to the advantage of the entire community.

SELLING TO MINORS.

The question of the sale of liquor to minors, youths, seventeen and nineteen years old, has come to the attention of the authorities. Two boys appeared in the municipal court on Saturday, of those ages, charged with drunkenness. Both were fined and sent to jail but this does not punish the persons who sold them the liquor. It should be the duty of the proper officials to forestall this case and secure a conviction of the guilty parties. Teach them such a lesson that others will not be guilty of a similar offense. Get busy, gentlemen!

St. Paul beging to move the Misses. Nothing at all. Chicago has been crowding Lake Michigan for some time and from the looks of the river banks in Janesville the block is fast being lost sight of in the piles of rubbish.

These peace agreements are likely to curtail the business of the gun-makers somewhat, but still Chicago makes a good supply of weapons in its labor wars and the peace agreement says nothing about stopping this war fare.

It is said that the war scare in Europe is not dead, but sleeping. Well, perhaps, it will wake up feeling much better for its after dinner nap.

The United States is now entertaining Admiral Togo and hopes that the dauntless Jap will return home with a good impression of the greatness of this part of the world.

In Morocco the outlook is still dark, but it may be due to the complexion of the residents of that particular bit of the earth's surface.

A farmer with a good potato crop will have no difficulty in trading it for an automobile with a silver horn (thrown in).

Now the dove of peace has reason to preen itself with France, England and the United States all in line for a permanent peace.

Never doubt that William Jennings Bryan will have something to say in the near future about Mr. Underwood.

While congress is putting in a summer of talk, lots of big measures are being annexed by the Taft machine.

Possibly the house of representatives wants to make itself so large that no one can see through it.

That famous White House cow, Pauline Wayne, should be culled after all the travel it has had.

So Mr. Underwood and Mr. La Follette could not agree on the tariff problem after all.

Did the Hoge man catch you yet?

EARLY LAND PATENTS WERE FILED TODAY

Documents issued by United States Government in Forties for Land in La Prairie Are Recorded.

Three land patents issued in the decade 1840 to 1850 at the Milwaukee land office for land in Section 26 in the town of La Prairie, totaling 230 acres, were filed today in the office of the register of deeds. Part of the land covered by the deeds belongs to the present time by the heirs of the De Witt Q. Stark estate.

The earliest of the three patents was issued for John Gardner in the year 1843 for 80 acres of land and bears the signature of President John Tyler. The other two were issued to Joseph R. Marshall for 40 acres and to Peter Smith Jr., for 120 acres in the early months of 1848, and bear the signature of President of the United States, James K. Polk.

The probable reason why these patents were never filed previously is that the land had remained in the same family during this time and there has been no question as to the title. According to the regulations now in force, persons requiring these patents from the government must file with the Register of Deeds the amount of money required to register the patent and any other costs involved, in order to insure the safe delivery and filing of the patent.

Transfer in Avon.
A transfer of real estate property in the town of Avon was recorded in the office of the register of deeds today. It involved the sale of land amounting in all to about 140 acres owned by John A. This is the property on south Main street adjoining the grounds of the public library which was purchased earlier in the year by Dr. Woods from Leslie Treat. He is erecting an office building there now and Dr. Woods and Thorne plan to move their offices to the building upon its completion.

The Skin and Not the Blood.

Until recently it has been a generally accepted proposition that eczema was a disease of the blood, and that in order to cure it, the blood must be purified and enriched by internal remedies. Careful experiments and scientific investigations have taught us that eczema is purely a skin disease, and curable through the skin alone. A great majority of persons afflicted with eczema have no other ailment, which is accepted as positive proof that it is purely a skin disease. Having established this fact, the chemists of the American Drug and Press Association set about to compound a prescription that would successfully cope with this disease, and after much investigating brought out Meritol Eczema Remedy. The effect of which is marvelous. If you are afflicted with this loathsome disease, do not delay trying Meritol Eczema Remedy. You will be surprised at its prompt action. Its soothing effect and its permanent results. Reliable Drug Co. are commissioned by the association to sell it in Janesville.

MAY RECONSIDER LIGHTING MATTER

Lighting Committee of Commercial Club Endeavoring to Get Council to Act Favorably on Ornamental Lights.

Efforts have been made by members of the special street lighting committee of the Industrial and Commercial club, who have conferred with several of the aldermen, to have the common council reconsider its action on the proposition with regard to the ornamental street lights for the downtown section of the city. At the last session of the city fathers two weeks ago the matter was brought up but the councilmen killed it by a 5 to 3 vote. However, the members of the committee are desirous of bringing about the desired improvement of the lighting system of the downtown streets and have been working hard to secure it.

A resolution was introduced at the last meeting to authorize the mayor and city clerk to sign the contract with the Jansville Electric company for the lights and voted down. In order to secure the ornamental lights the introduction and passage of a similar resolution will be necessary.

Indications are that the session will not be lengthy and only minor matters of business are scheduled for the work of the evening. There are the usual monthly reports of the city treasurer and board of education and of Supt. William Dulin of the city stone crusher plant for the past two weeks. Harry McDaniel, chairman of the motor racing committee of the Jansville Park association, has extended an invitation to the mayor and councilmen to attend the motorcycle races at the fair grounds, Saturday, August 26.

CLEAN-UP ORDERED BY CITY OFFICIALS

Property-owners Along River Bank Will Be Served With Notices Ordering Them to Comply With Health Rules.

Notices are being prepared for service upon property-owners along the river banks north of the Milwaukee street bridge, regarding the sanitary conditions prevailing on their property along the river bank. An inspection tour was made last week by city officials and in some cases conditions were found to be in direct violation of all rules of health. Notices signed by the mayor, city attorney and health officer will be served on these parties to remedy and discontinue to use their property along the river bank. If the owner on whom the notices are served do not comply with the order they will be prosecuted under the city ordinances, Nos. 71, 76, and 77, which prohibit these practices.

DRUNK ON TRAIN; GETS FIFTY DAYS

Joseph Barnhart Sentenced From Edgerton Court Under New Law For Riding on Train While Intoxicated.

Joseph Barnhart was committed from Justice North's court at Edgerton on the charge of being intoxicated on a passenger train, in violation of the law recently passed by the state legislature, to a session in the county hospital of fifty days, which was the alternative of paying $35 and costs amounting in all to $50. Barnhart arrived in Jansville Saturday night to begin his sentence.

Barnhart, it seems, had been riding Friday on the east bound Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul passenger train number 144 which arrives in Edgerton at 4:30 in the afternoon. He was noted to be in a state of intoxication by several passengers as well as Conductor Joss, who was in charge of the train. On arriving at Edgerton, the man was ordered to get off the train and to await the arrival of a police officer who was notified. Barnhart, who was bound for some point beyond Edgerton, did not budge and his journey so abruptly and sought to get aboard the train at another entrance. He was successful in this, but just as the train started, the expected officer arrived. He boarded the train and a hurried pull of the bell rope brought the train to a standstill, long enough to secure the guilty party.

Barnhart was arraigned before Justice North Saturday where he received his sentence, which he is now serving. This is the first case in Rock county under the new law prohibiting drunk persons from riding on the trains. The culprit received the extreme sentence, on the grounds that it will serve as an example in future cases.

Two From Beloit.

Two Beloit men, Steve Rizek and John Broderick, who had partaken too freely of the cup that cheers, received fines of $35 apiece and costs amounting to $65 or ten days in the county jail, in default of payment. The latter alternative was the only solution and the men began their term Saturday afternoon.

ARRESTED ALLEGED FORGER AT DEPOT

C. O. Brink, Wanted for Passing Phony Checks at Beloit, Taken in Custody Here Yesterday.

C. O. Brink, wanted at Beloit for the alleged forgery of two checks for $12.50 each, which he is alleged to have passed on two Beloit saloonkeepers, was arrested here yesterday afternoon by Chief of Police Appleby and Officer Patrick Pannik. Chief of Police Quilman yesterday telephoned, the local chief a description of the man, stating that Brink would probably come here yesterday. Brink was arrested as he stepped from the 4:30 train on the St. Paul from Mineral Point yesterday afternoon. The Beloit officers arrived last evening and took Brink to the Leno City. The prisoner is a one-eyed man about six feet tall and weighing two hundred pounds.

CHARGES MAN USED ABUSIVE LANGUAGE

Complaint Made By Mrs. Lawrence Against Peter Hammes For Applying Profane Terms To Her.

Complaint was today made by Mrs. Lawrence, living on Wall street, against Peter Hammes, who, she alleges, used abusive language to her on Saturday night and on Sunday. According to Mrs. Lawrence, Hammes visited her home Saturday night and applied terms to her that were profane and obscene. Again Sunday he attempted to drive him from her residence, but he refused to go until she backed her arguments with a club. Mrs. Lawrence, who is a hard-working, self-respecting woman, sought protection from the authorities. Hammes is working in Jefferson, but returns home every Saturday evening to spend Sunday with his wife and family.

Read Why

We are publishing this extraordinary page of specials

This paper has been studying for some time past the relative importance, interest and appeal the "advertising" of a modern paper should bear to the other "news" set forth in its columns.

(The result is staggering to the reporter and editorial pride.)

It has forcibly come to us that, what interests the world most today and has most interested them since the world began, is summed up in—

WHAT TO EAT—WHAT TO WEAR—WHAT TO HAVE IN THE HOME—HOW TO BEST SPEND MONEY TO PROMOTE THE MOST PLEASURE AND HAPPINESS AND COMFORT.

Compared with these great points which vitally concern humanity, the lesser happenings of life are but incidents.

And the person best qualified to interest the people of this city in these matters of most moment are by all means the merchants—the men who are in touch with the world's markets—who know what is being done in the new discoveries and origination of merchandise and food stuffs, to raise standards of living or change modes and styles.

Do the people of this city really appreciate this great truth? Do the merchants appreciate it themselves, is a question this paper has been asking itself and also the question—

HOW CAN THIS PAPER HELP bring a closer confidence and sense of mutual understanding and benefit between advertiser and the public?

In answer to this question THIS PAPER HAS SET ASIDE THIS SPACE for one day each week and has asked the merchants of this city to contribute

(What in their opinion will be their (one) most appealing bargain.)

Moreover, we mean to devote this space one day each week to announcing these "best" bargains. We also mean to protect our merchants and our readers in the sincerity of all offerings, and so we will appoint a competent shopping committee to each week inspect all "best" bargain offerings and decide which is the ONE BEST BARGAIN OF ALL the decision of the committee to be published in the ad of the week following the insertion of the "best" bargain.

45 Merchants Have Responded—some with price cuts, some with "new arrivals," some with style novelties, some with unique originations, some with offerings possessing more than ordinary appeal to eye, palate, or ear.

This Ad is Bound to Contain many things to interest and appeal to every reader of this paper—many needed items at a big saving, many wanted things, many new suggestions; and so, even if you haven't a need, desire or wish unfulfilled at the present time, the reading of this ad and the succeeding ads will be well worth your while in developing your discernment, just for the interest and satisfaction of determining in advance in your own mind the "bargain" which the committee will select as "best," your faculty for picking out real bargains when you see them and also because these announcements from every point of view are bound to make

The most interesting reading of any page in today's paper

with their offering of ladies' shoes were awarded the honor of "Best Bargain" by the committee last week, who decided that the shoes did look to be worth $3.50 as Luby & Co. stated in their ad. and that they had been run at the special price of $1.00.

Was this the Bargain you decided was best last week?

Did you read and respond to that bargain page—you certainly missed the most interesting reading in the paper if you happened to overlook it—But here is another—just as brimful of interest to you—read every special—perhaps the very item you need most is set forth here the most extraordinary offering on the page.

The Committee this week consists of three ladies from the W. C. T. U.

Real Politeness. Little Barbara's mother is careful about her manners and teaches her to answer everybody politely. But Barbara has a faculty of mixing up her polite speeches. The other day she came running into the house with some letters, and cried: "Mamma, I met the postman at the gate and I took the letters, and he said, 'Thank you.'" "And what did you say to him, then?" asked her mother. "Oh, I said, 'Pleasant dreams!'" answered Barbara.

Sapphire is a Doublet. The sapphire, like the ruby, being of the corundum group, it was for a long time supposed that the blue stones could be made in the laboratory as readily as the red. It has turned out, however, that the reconstructed sapphire is a doublet—that is to say, it is composed of two pieces of quartz, with blue coloring on the plane at the point where the cementing occurs.

Shoes. The better the shoes, it seems, the less the people walk. American shoe manufacturers have made an epoch in commerce, for American shoes are copied and imitated all over the civilized world as the best output of all nations. Yet the typical American will not walk and so is the easiest man on his shoes that ever lived.—New York Press.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I GAIN nothing by being with such as myself. We encourage one another in mediocrity."—Charles Lamb.

Who are your friends?

Are they people in whose society you take a torpid comfort because they continually look up to you and praise you?

Or are they mostly "such as yourself?"

Or are they the bigger folks who often make you feel ill at ease and splendidly uncomfortable because you cannot help realizing your own inferiority?

Tell me which and I will tell you whether you are retrograding or standing still or progressing in your development.

There is no tonic that promotes mental and spiritual growth like self-discipline.

"To be satisfied with your possessions but not contented with yourself until you have made the most of them"—such dissatisfaction is the soul's "growing pains."

And the best way to stimulate this divine discontent is to have as many friends as possible whom you admire and look up to, who require you to walk constantly on your mental and spiritual tiptoes in order to be anywhere near their level.

Of course I am not unaware that there is a semi-humorous aspect to this advice. In their side of the attention, I remind myself of the boy who, on being told that a man was known by the company he kept, said: "But father, if a good man keeps company with a bad man, is the good man bad because he keeps company with the bad man, or the bad man good because he keeps company with the good man?"

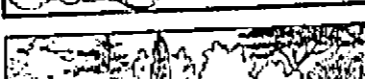

I have always admired the youth's logic.

Of course, if you make all your friends among your superiors that makes it necessary for them to consort with an inferior.

But I don't believe there is any danger that all your friends will be larger than you.

All I urge is that you make sure that enough of them are superior to keep you from being dragged with self content.

PEACH POSSIBILITIES.

There is no better fruit than the ripe, luscious peach; and fresh from the tree, full of its own flavor, it is indeed food for the gods.

Being frugal housekeepers, we must of necessity look into the future and provide for the time when fresh peaches are not obtainable.

We will can and pickle them, make jam and marmalade, and with the pits and peeling we will cook some green apples and make a most delectable jelly.

Sliced, and sprinkled with sugar and served with cream, they will form many a dainty dessert.

Peaches make a delicious pie. Bake a crust and fill with sliced peaches; sweeten with sugar and pile on whipped cream. Serve chilled.

Peach Canapés.—Slice circular pieces of sponge cake in butter until delicately browned. Place a half a peach which has been sprinkled with a little lemon juice on each. Pour over a little peach juice, fill the hollow in the peach with nut meats and serve.

Peach Tapioca.—Cook a cup of tapioca in boiling water after soaking one hour, add peach juice to flavor, sweeten and salt to taste. Place a dish with quartered peaches, fill with tapioca and bake thirty minutes. Serve with cream.

Clare Tarts.—Bake crusts of puff paste in the form of cups, lay in a half of a ripe peach and in each cavity place a blanched almond.

Peach baskets are made of paste and baked, then filled with sliced peaches.

Baked Peaches.—Peel and cut in halves, remove the stones, fill each cavity with sugar, butter and a little lemon juice and nutmeg. Bake 20 minutes and serve on buttered toast.

WASTING VITALITY.

You cannot eat your cake and leave it, too. Suppose that I have a degree of vitality for daily use represented by 80 on a scale of 100. Another might have 90 or 60 or 20. But it is certain that I can no more use my stock of vitality for a day in two ways than I can be in two places at once.

Suppose I eat for dinner fried potatoes, fresh pork, boiled cabbage, pickles and pie, with a cup of coffee. I should expect to be very "leggy" during the afternoon; at least four-fifths of the nervous energy that I ordinarily spend on my work would have to be spent in digesting the heavy meal. If by using the whip I persisted in spending as much vitality in spending as I generally do, and ate an evening meal as usual, lack of vivacity in the hours following and disturbed sleep would be the obvious and necessary result.

I might continue on this basis for days, weeks, months, or possibly years, if I had an iron constitution, but the end would be a premature breaking down of the system.

The reported marriage of Miss Catherine Myers to Mr. C. McDonald, of New York City, in Chicago on Thursday last, is denied by Miss Myers, who can't understand how such a report should have gained circulation.

"Women of today," said Mrs. La Follette, when seen by a representative of this paper, "are thinking of the larger problems which confront the home, and should have constructive editorial comments on these questions. Many newspapers are furnishing excellent pages for their women readers, but a large majority are inclined to devote their columns entirely to the trivial."

Mrs. La Follette is one of the most widely known women in America today and has devoted much of her life to a careful study of the big issues of the day, particularly as they affect women and the home.

THE DEPARTED swore, and got out theories tangled. I said the rudest kind of things—I never can forget it; and how that he equipped with wings, how deeply I regret it! For we were friends for many years, our friendship was unbroken; he left, and finding in his ears were harsh words I had spoken. At which I soon to hear his tread, when, with a gleam and a gasp, he came, and stands beside my bed, and leaves me speechless. He breathes a streak of fire and smoke, till I am scared, already, and says: "My friend, until you croak, remorse will be your steady. We stand beside the public dump, and talked of things forgotten; you called me leatherhead and clump, and said my brains were rotten. And while I sit upon a cloud with folks of princely titles, you'll mingle with the worldly crowd, and grieve will rend your vitals." GRAIN COMPETITION FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

Twenty-one Thousand Boys and Girls of State Will Compete at County Fairs for Exhibition of Grain Crops.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 7.—Twenty-one thousand young people will compete at forty-five of the county fairs to be held in Wisconsin this fall for $10,000 offered as prize money for the best exhibits of grain grown by boys and girls under 18 years of age. This movement was started in 1906 at the Madison county fair when 500 boys entered the young people's grain-growing contest. The popularity of the contest advanced with wonderful rapidity from that time. The object is to get the boys together for discussions of seed values and to interest them in growing seed grain, and to lead to a wide dissemination of pure-bred grain. It is estimated that yields of grain in various parts of the state have been increased 25 per cent as a result of this campaign. The state experiment station furnishes literature and carefully selected pure-bred seed grain to the county superintendents of schools who distribute it among the district teachers.

There is a growing sentiment favoring abolition of the cash prizes and substituting the scholarships at the young people's course conducted by the agricultural colleges. In 1909 twenty-one boys attended this course while in 1910 forty-four youngsters took this year. An enrollment of about 100 students is expected this year.

Considerable inter-county rivalry has arisen in the seed-growing contests. Thus for this year St. Croix county leads with a total entry of 1,400 contestants for the five scholarships offered. Other counties which will conduct contests this year include: Polk, Chippewa, Eau Claire, Jackson, La Crosse, Monroe, Vernon, Richland, Grant, Lafayette, Sauk, Green, Rock, Racine, Jefferson, Dane, Juneau, Dodge, Ozaukee, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Green Lake, Marquette, Waushara, Manitowish, Brown, Door, Outagamie, Winnebago, Shawano, Oconto, Langlade, Oneida, Marathon, Clark, Rusk, and Ashland.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A KINGLY MIND.

One of the bravest men who ever lived died in Des Moines recently.

In the year 1874 N. P. Miller, then a mail clerk on the Burlington road, passed through a dreadful wreck.

In a collision he was thrown to the floor of the mail car, and a red-hot stove fell over on his face. Wedged in by the furniture, he was unable to move. One ear was burned off and an eyeball destroyed, while the flesh and bones of one side of the face were roasted and his brain seared. It seems incredible, but it was an hour before Miller was extricated.

When the doctors finally got to him one remarked: "All we can do is to relieve him. He cannot live."

Whereupon Miller retorted, "I will live longer than you doctors." And he did.

He lay in the hospital for two years and suffered many delicate operations, refusing all anesthetics.

The great surgeon of his time, Fenner, who became interested in Miller's case, performed many of the operations, making only a nominal charge for fees that otherwise would have been enormous.

For two years the church bells in the vicinity of the hospital did not ring because of Miller's delicate condition.

He returned to his mail car and served twelve years. Finally, recognizing his injuries and service, congress created the position of superintendent of mails at Des Moines and gave Mr. Miller the life position, a place he filled until his death.

Though frightfully disfigured and a cripple for life, Mr. Miller was always cheerful and a man whom it was a pleasure to know.

Every day of his life conditions required that his wound should be dressed. How he endured the constant draft upon his vitality for thirty-seven years is a marvel.

With one side of his face swathed always in fine linen and most carefully dressed—he was an unusually handsome man—Miller was a striking figure.

One day he was asked the secret of his wonderful survival and replied: "Why, Fenner saved my brain. We do not live by our bodies. We live in our minds."

This man ran the whole gamut of heroism.

Through the dark days of ceaseless suffering he was no less heroic than in the ghastly crisis of the wreck.

And he stood a living demonstration of the divine power of kingly mind over mere matter.

A Poem.

(Copyright applied for Aug. 2, 1911.)

Last night I talked to Court House part. I was not going for a look, but simply went to hear the band, and the way they played was something grand.

And while my ears received this treat, upon the grass I took a seat. Oh, the music it was out of sight, and on the crowd its lustre spread, but the lights they read their music by, were not a pleasure to the eye. The sound, poured forth with every breeze, then, and I sat aloft among the trees.

I'm sure the angels looking down, would pity the band in Janesville town, who had to play by such a light, and sit in the hollow, clear out of sight.

Now if I had money—which I have not—I'd erect a platform on the spot. The zephyrs would catch the cheery strains and waft them to our tired brains. From the light above I would string a wire and to light that stand I would aspire. With fifty lights on every side, and a group in the center would be my pride. From near and far they would come to view this much needed band stand if it were only true.

In view of the large attendance expected extensive preparations have been made for the reception and entertainment of the delegates. The convention proper will begin on Wednesday, after a pontifical mass in St. Peter's Cathedral, by Monsignor Falconio, the papal delegate to the United States. The Rev. Peter J. The visitors came from all parts of Indiana and from various points in Ohio, Kentucky and Illinois. The chief official action of the convention was the formal dedication of this afternoon of Camp Warner in Columbian Park, where a canvas city of 1,000 tents accommodates the greater portion of the large number of guests. The encampment will continue until the end of the week. The big parade will take place Wednesday.

PERFECT HEALTH ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE

Manner of Living in Large Cities Such That Perfect Health Is of Unusual.

In a recent interview one of the physicians who are introducing the remarkable new tonic "Tonn Vita" to the American public, said this to say:

"The manner of living in the larger cities of the United States is such that perfect health is almost impossible. The human machine will not run true and strong day after day with its vitality continually being sapped by the constant nervous strain, irregular hours, hastily eaten food, the wear and tear and rush of city life, are largely responsible for the immense amount of ill, listless, half-sick people of the present generation. Debility or a 'run down' condition as it is called, is everywhere. Half the people I see in street cars, restaurants, theatres, or on the street, are undoubtedly in a debilitated condition, with their nerves in such a state that they either wish to lie down and rest or rush after some excitement."

"Any one who has not a constant stream of nervous debilitated people as I have since I began my present work can tell a man or woman in this condition at a glance. I wish to emphasize the fact that the number of debilitated people in the larger American cities, is appalling."

"Tonn Vita," the medicine I am helping to introduce, is to combat this condition. I believe it to be the best preparation ever before sold to the public, in that it is immediately effective in cases of debility and other troubles that go hand in hand with this disease."

You can not hope to enjoy life or meet with much success if you are (read all the time, have little ambition, and feel continually depressed in mind and body. Every half-sick, worn-out man or woman, owes it to themselves and their family, to try "Tonn Vita."

If the tonic does not make life more worth living, and brings back the healthy, energetic spirit, that is new lacking, the price is refunded. The Smith Pharmacy has the agency for "Tonn Vita" in Janesville; also for Louis Blumhard Laxative, the purest and best family laxative on the market. Let's Blumhard Laxative will not injure the most delicate constitution. It is ideal for children.

NOTES FOR CITY FARMERS ONLY.

(By H. L. RANS.)

We have been asked a good many times if there is any certain remedy for the cure of mumps in aged pigs. We have never found any, and we have tried everything on the market, from a cold compress to a pellete.

If the old-fashioned Irish mumps ever gets a grip on the vocal chords of a sow enfeebled by age and lack of food, it is all off. The mumps is a cross between the lumpy jaw and a cheesy goitre. It is more to be dreaded than a rubber dam on a protruding gum.

If we had our choice between entertaining the mumps or sending the editorials in the Ladies' Home Journal, we should have to flip two bits and trust to an overshadowing providence.

One of the earliest sights in this cheesebaw world is a fat man with a set of mumps which drop down over his shoulders like a cheesecloth jelly strainer.

We are glad to note that the cruel practice of driving a horse with blinders is going out of fashion. Nothing will strain the eyeballs of a gelding quicker than trying to get a line on a gad fly around a pair of sideboots which fit like a derby hat on a hedgehog.

If you want to ball up the eyes of your work horses with catarrhs, keep up this pernicious practice.

When rigging up a roadster for the horse market, don't neglect the use of the curling iron on his mane and tail. The average horse buyer is an aesthetic chap, a lover of the beautiful and a devotee of the New Thought propaganda. The sight of a wavy mane and tail will make his mouth water like lemon juice on a cleft palate.

The use of the curling iron requires caution. One of our neighbors was toying with a curling iron one day in the rear of a melancholy gelding with a torpid liver, and while trying to figure out what effect the disease of Lot's wife had on the salt market he absent-mindedly burned the maniche of a bone spavin, with the result that the gelding ran a hasty leg through his interior mechanism. Unless your ribs are puncture proof, always use a curling iron with a handle like a hoe.

Anglo-Saxon Bread.

The food of the Anglo-Saxons was largely bread. This is shown by the fact that a domestic was called a "loaf eater," and the mistress of the house was called a "loaf giver." The bread was baked in round, flat cakes, which the superstition of the cook marked with a cross to preserve them from the perils of the fire.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Next time Father will take a sounding line along.

The Taming of Red Butte Western

FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright, 1911, by Charles Scribner's Sons.

When the screaming passenger train was within three or four hundred yards of the spur track switch and racing toward it at full speed, a man, who seemed to the onlookers to rise up out of the ground in the train's path, ran down the track to meet the uprushing headlight, waving his arms frantically in the stop signal. For an instant that seemed an age the passenger engineer made no sign. Then came a short, sharp whistle scream, a spewing of sparks from railroad and fire at the clip of the emergency brakes, a crash as of the ripping asunder of the mechanical soul and body, and a wrecked train lay tilted at an angle of 45 degrees against the bank of the hillside cutting.

It was a moment for action rather than for words, and when he cleared the platform hand rail and dropped, running, Lidgevood was only the fraction of a second ahead of Van Lew and Jeffers. With Bradford swinging his lantern for Williams and his friend to come on, the four men were at the wreck before the cries of fright and agony had broken out upon the awful stillness following the crash.

There was quick work and heart-breaking to be done and, for the first few critical minutes, a terrible lack of hands to do it. Cranford, the engineer, was still in his cab, plumed down by the coal which had shifted forward at the shock of the sudden stop. In the wreck of the tender, the ironwork of which was rammed into shapeless crumplings by the uprushing tracks of the baggage car, lay the fireman, past human help, as a lady side swing of Bradford's lantern showed.

The baggage car, riding high upon the crushed tender, was body whole, but the smoker, day coach and sleeper were all more or less shattered, with the smoking car already beginning to blaze from the broken amp. It was a crisis to call out the best in any gift of leadership, and Lidgevood's genius for swift and effective organization came out strong under the hammer blow of the occasion.

"Stay here with Bradford and Jeffers and get that engineer out!" he called to Van Lew. Then, with arms outspread, he charged down upon the train's company, excepting as it could through the broken windows of the cars. "This way, every man of you!" he yelled, his shout dominating the clamor of cries, crashing glass and hissing steam. "The fire's what we've got to fight! Line up down to the river and pass water in anything you can get hold of! Here, Groner!" to the train conductor, who was picking himself up out of the ditch into which the shock had thrown him—"send somebody to the Pullman for blankets. Jump for it, man, before this fire gets headway!"

Luckily there were by this time plenty of willing hands to help. The Timmington is a man's country, and there were few women in the train's passenger list. Quickly a line was formed to the nearby margin of the river, and water, in buckets improvised out of pieces of tin torn from the wrecked car roofs, in saturated coats, cushion covers and Pullman blankets, hipped upon the fire, beat it down and presently extinguished it.

Then the work of extricating the imprisoned ones began, light for it being obtained by the backing of Williams' engine to the main line above the switch so that the headlight played upon the scene.

In a very little time the length and breadth of the disaster were fully known and its consequences alleviated so far as they might be with the means at hand. There were three killed outright in the smoker, two in the half-filled day coach and none in the sleeper, six in all, including the fireman planned beneath the wreck of the tender. Cranford, the engineer, was dug out of his coal covered grave by Van Lew and Jeffers badly burned and bruised, but still living, and there were a score of other woundings, more or less dreadful.

Red Butte was the nearest point from which a relief train could be sent, and Lidgevood promptly cut the telegraph wire, connected his pocket set of instruments and sent in the call for help. That done he transferred the pocket relay to the other end of the cut wire and called up the night dispatcher at Angels. Fortunately McCloskey and Dawson were just in with the two wrecking trains from the Crosswater hills, and the superintendent ordered Dawson to come out immediately with his train and a fresh crew if it could be obtained.

Dawson took the wire and replied in person. His crew was good for another tussle, he said, and his train was still in readiness. He would start west at once or the moment the dispatcher could clear for him and would be at Silver Switch as soon as the intervening miles would permit.

CHAPTER XX.

THE CHALLENGE.

ELEANOR BREWSTER and her guests were grouped beside Lidgevood when he disconnected the pocket set from the cut wire and temporarily repaired the break. The service car had been turned into a makeshift hospital for the wounded, and the car party was homeless.

"We are all waiting to say how sorry we are that we insisted on coming and thus adding to your responsibilities, Howard," said the president's daughter, and now there was no trace of mockery in her voice.

His answer was entirely sympathetic and grateful.

"I'm only sorry that you have been obliged to see and take part in such a frightful horror, that's all. As for your being in the way—it's quite the other thing. Cranford owes his life to Mr. Van Lew and Jeffers, and as for you three, including Eleanor and the two young women, your work is beyond any praise of mine. I'm anxious now merely because I don't know what to do with you while we wait for the relief train to come."

"Ignore us completely," said Eleanor promptly. "We are going over to that little level place by the side-track and make a campfire. We were just waiting to be comfortably forgotten for having burdened you with a pleasure party at such a time."

"We couldn't foresee this, any of us," he made haste to say. "Now, if you'll do what you suggested—go and build a fire to wait by—I hope it won't be very long."

Ordinarily the mere fact of a destructive derangement leaves little to be discovered when the cause is sought afterward. But, singularly enough, the curved track was torn up only on the side toward the hill; the outer rail was still in place, and the cross-ties, deeply imbedded in the hard gravel of the cutting, showed only the surface mutilation of the grinding wheels.

"Broken range under the 215, I'll bet," said Groner, holding his lantern down to the gashed ties. But Bradford denied it.

"No," he contradicted; "Cranford was able to talk a little after we toted him back to the service car. He says it was a broken rail; says he saw it and saw the man that was dragging him down, all in good time to give her the air before he hit it."

"What man was that?" asked Groner, whose point of view had not been that of an onlooker.

Lidgevood answered for himself and Bradford.

"That is one of the things we'd like to know, Groner. Just before the smash a man, whom none of us recognized, ran down the track and tried to give Cranford the stop signal."

They had been walking on down the line, looking for the actual point of derailment. "Then it was found it proved Cranford's assertion—in part. There was a gap in the rail on the river side of the line, but it was not a fracture. At one of the joints the fishplates were missing, and the rail ends were sprung apart sidewise sufficiently to let the wheel flanges pass through. Groner went down on his hands and knees, with the lantern held low, and made another discovery.

"This ain't no happen-so, Mr. Lidgevood," he said when he got up. "The spikes are pulled!"

Lidgevood said nothing. There are discoveries which are beyond speech. But he stooped to examine for himself. Groner was right. For a distance of eight or ten feet the rail had been loosened and the spikes were gone out of the corresponding cross-ties. After it was loosened the rail had been sprung aside, and the bit of rock inserted between the parted ends to keep them from springing together was still in place.

Lidgevood's eyes were bloodshot when he rose and said:

"I'd like to ask you two men as men what devil would set a trap like this for a train load of unoffending passengers?"

Bradford's slow drawl dispelled a little of the mystery.

"It wasn't meant for Groner and his passenger wagons, I reckon. In the natural run of things it was the 200 and the service car that ought to 've hit this thing first, 204 being supposed to be a half hour off her schedule. It was aimed for us, all right enough. And it wasn't meant to throw us into the hill neither. If we'd hit it gold! west we'd be in the river. That's why it was sprung out instead of in."

Lidgevood's right hand, balled into a fist, smote the air, and his outburst was a fierce imprecation. In the midst of it Groner said, "Listen!" and a moment later a man walking rapidly up the track from the direction of Little Butte station came into the small circle of lantern light. Groner threw the light on the newcomer, revealing a haggard face—the face of the owner of the Wire Silver mine.

"Heavens and earth, Mr. Lidgevood, this is awful!" he exclaimed. "I heard of it by phone and hurried over to do what I could. My men of the night shift are on the way, waiting up the track, and the entire Wire Silver outfit is at your disposal."

"I am afraid you are a little late, Mr. Fleming," was Lidgevood's rejoinder, unreasoning antagonism making the words sound crisp and ungrateful. "Half an hour ago—"

"Yes, certainly. Goodness should have phoned me if he knew," cut in the mine owner. "Anybody hurt?"

"Half of the number involved and six dead," said the superintendent soberly. Then the four of them walked slowly and in silence up the track toward the two campfires, where the unhurt survivors and the service car's guests were fighting the chill of the high mountain midnight.

Lidgevood was unpleasantly surprised to find that Miss Brewster knew the man whom her father had tersely characterized as "a born gentleman and a born buccaneer," but the fact remained. When he came with Fleming into the circle of light cast by the smaller of the two Mrs. Brewster not only welcomed the mine owner; she immediately introduced him to her friends and made room for him on the flat stone which served her for a seat.

But just now the "gentleman buccaneer" was not living up to the full measure of his reputation in the dark, devil field, as Lidgevood was not slow to observe. His replies to Miss Brewster and the others were not always coherent, and his face, seen in the flickering firelight, was almost ghastly. True, the talk was low toned and fragmentary, desultory enough to require little of any member of the group sitting around the smoldering fire on the spur embankment.

Yet Lidgevood fancied that of the group circling the fire Fleming was the one whose eyes turned oftener toward the sheeted figures across the track, sometimes in morbid stings. But now and again with the haggard side glance of fear.

Why was the mine owner afraid? Lidgevood analyzed the query shrewdly. Was he implicated in the matter of the loosened rail? Remembering that the trap had been set, not for the passenger train, but for the special, the superintendent dismissed the charge against Fleming. Thus far he had done little to incur the mine owner's enmity—at least nothing to call for cold blooded murder in reprisal. Yet the man was acting very curiously. Much of the time he scarcely appeared to hear what Miss Brewster was saying to him. Moreover, he had lied. Lidgevood recalled his glib explanation at the meeting beside the derailed rail. Fleming claimed to have had the news of the disaster by phone. Where had he been when the phone message found him? Not at his mine, Lidgevood decided, since he could not have walked from the Wire Silver to the wreck in an hour. It was all very puzzling, and what little suppositional evidence there was was conflicting. Lidgevood put the query aside finally, but with a mental reservation. Later he would go into this newest mystery and probe it to the bottom.

"A TRAP SET, NOT FOR THE PASSENGER TRAIN, BUT FOR MY SPECIAL."

bottom, Judson would doubtless have a report to make, and this might help in the probing.

Fortunately the waiting interval was not greatly prolonged—fortunately, since for the three young women the reaction was coming and the full horror of the disaster was beginning to make itself felt. Lidgevood contrived the necessary diversion when the relief train from Red Butte shot around the curve of the hillside cutting.

"Van Lew, suppose you and Jeffers take the women out of the way for a few minutes while we are making the transfer," he suggested quietly. "There are enough of us to do the work, and we can spare you."

This left Fleming unaccounted for, but with a very palpable effort he shook himself free from the spell of whatever had been smelting him.

"That's right," he assented briskly. "I was just going to suggest that." Then, indicating the men pouring out of the relief train: "I see that my buckles have come up on your train to lend a hand. Command us just the same as if we belonged to you. That is what we are here for."

Van Lew and the collegian walked the three young women a little way up the old spur, while the wrecked train's company, the living, the injured and the dead, were transferred, down the line to the relief train to be taken back to Red Butte. Fleming helped with the other helpers, but Lidgevood had an uncomfortable feeling that the man was always at his elbow. He was certainly there when the last of the wounded had been carried around the wreck and the relief train was ready to buck away to Little Butte, where it could be turned upon the main spur Y. It was while the conductor of the train was gathering his volunteers for departure that Fleming said what he had apparently been waiting for a chance to say.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 7, 1871.

Fruit Thieves.
Orchard depredations in this city have become so common and of so rampant a nature that some measures against the operations of nocturnal pilferers should be taken. Orchards are depopulated and scattering trees in garden patches robbed of all their fruit, often in a single night. The thieves seem to indulge in their pilfering propensities without fear of the consequences, plying their unlawful avocations on the bright moonlight nights, within a few rods of the sleeping owners whom they are robbing. "Thou shalt not steal" is one of the requirements of divine law, and all good Christians should see that it is strictly carried out, even if it is necessary to accomplish its enforcement at the muzzle of a double barrel shot-gun.

Hostile Demonstrations.
Milwaukee street was the theatre of several disturbances among the bibulous frequenters of our drinking saloons on Saturday night and yesterday. Saturday night affrays were equally divided between the east and the west side, a larger beer establishment in the second ward claiming the first blood, and a whiskey mill on West Milwaukee street following suit. Yesterday afternoon a three hundred knock down was indulged in on the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets. Eyes shadowed, noses damaged, and paraphernalia developed are the results of the melee.

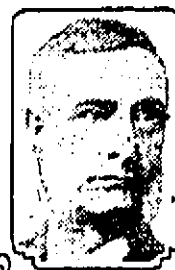

A government commission to regulate great industrial organizations, in the same way that the interstate commerce commission regulated railways, would be most desirable.

Attorney-Gen. Wickersham.

Judge E. H. Gary

The government control of business combinations is socialistic. Congress should place no restrictions in trade.

John E. Parsons.

WILL THE GOVERNMENT CONTROL BUSINESS COMBINATIONS AND REGULATE PRICES.

Sentiments expressed pro and con by men of national reputation.

Washington, D. C.—The step from an Interstate Commerce Commission which regulates freight charges to a commission which will regulate the prices of commodities handled or produced by business combinations is not a far cry. This movement, first suggested by Judge Gary, the practical head of the Steel Trust, was reiterated in different form by Attorney General Wickersham in a recent speech and criticized by John E. Parsons, attorney for the Sugar Trust, before a government commission, all in the short space of two weeks. It shows that one of the great problems which the next congress will have to face will be the thrashing out of this important question. Those in favor of the suggestion believe that without hardship to the corporations, prices could be established and regulated so that there could not exist a trust so powerful that it would work contrary to the best interests of the people at large. On the other hand, those opposing the sentiment believe that it is a socialistic teaching and that congress should place no restriction or trade, leaving to competition the settling of all prices. It is a new idea which is going to gain in momentum with discussion and there will undoubtedly be introduced in the next session of congress a bill looking toward the regulation of prices of all business combinations.
